Budget Figures in Detail Appear in Table on Page Eight

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.-(P)-A deficit lies ahead and tax rates must be increased, but still, President Hoover today told congress the government's finances are in a thoroughly sound condition.

The deficit he estimated at $180,-000,000 and he said, in his annual message transmitting the budget, that the 1 per cent income tax reduction granted a year ago could not

But he submitted a balauced budget for the fiscal year 1932 and a state-ment that rigid economy in legisla-tion would give the nation a surplus of $30,600,000 for that period.

Although asserting appropriations to relieve unemployment and help farmers of the drouth area would tend to increase the deficit as estimated, he expressed the opinion these needs could be met without undue danger.

The president was emphatic in warning congress against extravagant appropriations. Strict economy must be observed, he said, if the narrow surplus estimated for next year is to be realized and a deficit for that period avoided. Nearly Four Billion.

A total of $3,932,842,000 was re-quested to finance the government through the next fiscal year. He recommended increases over current appropriations of $109,620,000 for vel erans, $51,500,000 for federal aid roads, $10,330,000 for public build-ings, $2,480,660 for prohibition en-forcement, and $35,000,000 for the shipping board's construction loan

Mr. Griffin, the last witness of the day, answered numerous questions propounded by Robert E. Healy, chief counsel for the commission, regarding his connection with the power company during the per od of public ownership agitation. He said he had been first approached by representatives of the company in 1920 after a series of bills were introduced in the Georgia legislature proposing a pretentious program for state acquisition and operation of all water power utilities. Sponsored by the Municipal League of Georgia, one of the bills had proposed a bond issue of some $100,000,000, which were to be used in taking over the utilities, he said.

The Bainbridge editor testified that during the first year of his employment he was paid directly by the Georgia Railway and Power Company, but for the two subsequent years he received his compensation from the Utilities In-

Fashions change in drugs and medicines just as they do in the style of milady's dress or hat. It hasn't been very long ago when aspirin was known and used only by a few physicians. Today it has become the most widely used of all medicines. ONE of the unique values enjoyed by advertisers in The Saturday Evening Post is observable every Thursday all about you.

Just watch the buyer of this magazine as he opens it to his gaze.

Time after time you will see him leaf through its pages starting at the back cover and coming forward.

This simply means that as banner-carrier to American business The Post's advertising pages compete successfully with its editorial pages in reader attention.

THE inexperienced sometimes feel that an advertisement in a lean publication has a special advantage in visibility.

What of it?—Marshall Field's store set out in a vacant prairie might be more conspicuous but it certainly would be less successful.

The aim of the mature advertiser is not to snare his reader, but to inform him; in The Post he gets plus visibility because he gets plus interest.

Buyers come to the market; business goes where business is.

The Saturday Evening Post reaches the most intelligent and progressive audience in America—that hub three-million-strong which turns the taste, thinking, buying of the other millions in this land.

It is big in circulation because it is big in character; it is big in advertising because it is big in rewards!

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a homemade medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germladen phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active sgent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded. —adv.

IMMIGRATION BAN OF 5 YEARS URGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 .- (AP)-A five- ear ban on immigration from every other land will be corsidered tomorrow by the house immigration committee as an unemployment relief

WASHINGTON. Dec. 3.—(P)—The senate took under consideration today more than a score of important nominations with signs of trouble ahead for some of the appointees.

William N. Doak, Virginia, to be secretary of labor, succeeding Senator Davis, of Pennsylvania, headed the list submitted today by President Hoover and there was every indication of his early confirmation.

But democrats and republican independents both asked "thorough investigation" of the men selected for the newly organized tariff and power commissions. In the six tariff commission mominees now serving under recess appointment and the five members announced today for the power mittee as an unemployment relief measure.

Moving to carry out President Hoover's suggestion for further limitation on inmigrants who might displace Ameri n workers or become public charges, Chairman Johnson called the committee meeting after introducing a resolution to effect the embargo.

Other measures also may come up tomorrow. President Hoover's message to congress marked a need for exhaustive re-examination of the entire subject and Johnson has said that discussion of any proposal would open the general subject.

The Johnson resolution is similar to one sponosred by Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, except that the Pennsylvanian would lay the ban for two years.

committees and it is expected hearings will be held for the tariff and power commission nominees.

A contest has been threatened against Eugene Meyer, Jr., of New York, whose nomination as governor of the federal reserve board, was received today, but his friends were confident of early confirmation.

Three of the six members of the tariff commission were mentioned in private discussions in the senate today for particular study by the finance committee—Henry P. Fletcher, of Pennsylvania, the chairman; Edgar B. Brossard. republican, Utah, and Alfred P. Dennis, democrat, Maryland. The last two were on the old commission. The other three members are: Thomas W. Page, of Virginia, and Lincoln Dixon, of Indiana, democrats, and John Lee Coulter, of North Dakota, republican.

The five named for the power commission are: George Otis Smith, of Canada and Latin-American counippine immigration to Hawaii except in cases certified by the commissioner of labor.

Hawaii's delegate, Victor S. K. Houston, has been asked to oppose this because it would affect sugar and pineapple industries there.

TEXTILE LABOR REFORM. The proposal of the Cotton Textile Institute to abolish the night work of women and children in the cotton mills of the nation is making significant progress. In America, where men without a sense of beauty sacrifice centuryold trees in the name of "development," a stranger might expect to find but few with the Fallodon understanding of values; but there are mil-but few with the railodon understanding of values; but there are milions who regret the needless destruction of our heritage and now are making some effort to restore the beauty that was sacrificed.

They are handicapped—most of them—by their little acquaintance with trees. Whether they wish to plant a few saplings in their own front yards or a double row to border a newly opened street, they must consult a nurseryman and accept what he has to sell or make their choice on "hear-say" evidence and trust to luck for their reward in years to

A tree that thrives in one region will starve or be killed by frost in another. A tree that grows rapidly will be a soft and brittle thing soon to die, and the stately monarch that outlives generations of men will a develop too slowly to benefit the man who plants it.

For generations, private citizens and government agents searched the world over to find the ideal shade tree. Men of the department of world over to find the ideal shade tree. Men of the department of agriculture, combing the waste places of the world's far corners for grasses and fruits, looked everywhere for a tree that would endure extremes of heat and cold—that would thrive in moist regions and survive the worst drouth—that would become a giant, and yet, in violation of the accepted rule, would afford shade quickly.

Somebody found it in Siberia. It is called the Siberian elm. It has some of the characteristics of the American elm that lines the street.

some of the characteristics of the American elm that lines the streets of quaint old villages, but it grows like Jack's beanstalk.

I planted several of them—mere switches the size of a man's finger —three years ago. Now they have the girth of my arm and are 15 feet in height—a phenomenal growth in view of the fact that they have lived through two years of drouth that parched field crops and gardens.

Graceful and sturdy, their dense foliage an honest green, their leaves last to fall and among the first to appear in the spring, they have every virtue to be found in a tree and no faults at all.

They are for sale in all parts of the country now and apparently ive in all parts.

At last the dwellers in barren places can plant trees without feeling that they are martyrs to posterity.

noon at a meeting of the commission at which the organization was perfected.

Under the direction of a committee headed by Cator Woolford, president of the Atlanta Retail Credit Company, close scrutiny will be given each application, and transients will not be placed. not be placed. The resolution ordering the committee to take such action was offered by Councilman Wiley L. Moore, chairman of the finance committee of council.

Fulton county commissioners and the council of the borough of Atlanta were asked to refrain from giving financial assistance to any relief work unless recommended by a committee of the commission headed by Samuel C. Dobbs, president of the Dobbs Mortgage & Investment Company.

tensions to public utilities. "Despite the fact that Atlanta is in the best condition of any large city in the entire country, I feel that we can not provide jobs for the unemployed of the whole southeast," Mr. Dobbs said.

"We are in the throes of a kind of hysteria in Atlanta. Things are not nearly as bad as we are painting them. I have visited almost all of the important cities in the country within the past few months, and I tell you Atlanta is in the best condition of Atlanta is in the best condition of them all.

"There is no need to get panicky. Atlanta is in good condition. I venture to say that at least half of the unemployment is due to transients."

Mr. Moore then made his motion to put the commission on record as opposing extension of help to others than Atlantans.

"This commission cannot hope to do.

"This commission cannot hope to do "This commission cannot hope to do effective work for Atlanta, if it is to attempt to provide employment for the entire southeast," he said. "People are rushing into Atlanta by the hundreds. Just as soon as a new project is announced, they come here expecting to find a Utopia where all their economic ills will vanish. Atlanta will have hard enough time this winter in caring for its own citizens, and this commission should put the world on notice that it can not care for all the unemployment."

In presenting a partial report of the investigations of his committee Mr. Woolford declared that 68 lead-ing firms in Atlanta reported that Mr. Woolford declared that 68 leading firms in Atlanta reported that 5,082 are employed as against 5,372 last year. He was informed, he said, that none would be cut off during December, January and February but that nine would be added. Executives informed him that 141 were being kept at work in those firms who actually were not needed.

"That is the type of co-operation we are going to get from business and it is indicative of the fine and loyal manner in which they are going to back up the work of this commission," he said. "They are to be congratulated on their co-operation and we on having such a fine set of men to deal with."

Detective Tells How He First Suspected Mate of Murder.

DENVER, Col., Dec. 3.—(P)—The father of 10-year-old Leona O'Laugh-lin today told a jury of his first suspicions that the child's stepmother, on trial for murder, might be concerned in the slaying of the girl.

Leona's body was found October 16 in Berkeley lake, two days before Leo O'Laughlin, the father, a city detective, had asked a fellow officer, Clarence Jones, to search the pool. O'Laughlin, reputedly suffering from pulverized glass he had swallowed, was ill in a hospital and had not been told of his daughter's death.

Today at the trial of Mrs. Pearly D Laughlin, the stepmo'her arrested after the child's body was found, the father told how he felt his daughter had been slain.

"Why did you suggest Detective Jones search Berkeley lake?" John Keating, chief of defense counsel asked the witness.

And Girls, Here's TICKLETOES and Her Lovely Big All-Metal Bed--you can have them both Free For Only 4 New Subscriptions to the Daily and Sunday Constitution

There isn't a single little girl in Atlants or 'round about who need worry whether or not Santa Claus is going to come to her house this year for this offer made by The Atlanta Constitution affords an opportunity to have Tickletoes and her lovely bed (a gift to be adored and cherished by any little girl) without a penny's cost.

If you could buy Tickletoes at the store she alone would cost from $10 to $12 because she's a big "life-like" baby doll beautifully dressed in organdy with trimmings of lace and ribbons. And she crys when you squeeze her dimpled knees, too. She rolls her eyes, and her little arms, legs and cute little fingers and toes are of moulded rubber that feel and look exactly real. And when her tiny hands and legs get dirty, you can wash them with soap and water just like you do your own.

Her bed, too, is perfectly wonderful—just her size and made like a regular grown-up's bed of strong metal tubing. The mattress is the kind you find on a real baby's bed in the nursery—tufted and fitted so that you can make it up just like mother does. It is 24 inches long and 13 inches wide and you can get the whole outfit free.

It will take you scarcely no time at all to earn her, and after you get the required subscriptions for the doll and the bed you'll say that they were worth a hundred times more effort than it took to get them.

A SITUATION THAT DEMANDS ATTENTION

FIVE years ago the N.C.&ST.L. Railway operated 76 passenger trains daily. Today it operates 36. The movement of local package freight is less by half, or more. Onefourth of its agency stations have been closed. Nearly forty miles of track have been abandoned and torn up. Every possible economy has been practiced to save other portions of the line, but the eventual abandonment of further branch lines is possible if their disuse

These facts are of public concern. Nothing can take the place of railroad transport for the major needs of this country in hauling coal, ore, metals, logs and lumber, cement, stone, cotton and cottonseed, and other raw materials for manufacture and construction, or meats, grain, vegetables and fruits for food. Railroads are indispensable. Reason dictates that the exactions placed on them shall be no greater than those placed on other and competing transportation agencies.

The railroads recognize that the public is entitled to the form of transportation it prefers, but urge that all forms of competitive common carrier service be put on equal terms. It is unfair and uneconomic to require railroads to provide and maintain their own roadway, engines and cars and pay taxes on them in all counties, municipalities and taxing districts through which they run so long as their competitors are permitted to use for profit the highways provided for and by the general public, without paying a fair charge for such investment cost, maintenance and use.

The railroads build and maintain their own roadways. All elements considered, this costs them nearly one third of every dollar taken in. Carriers for hire by bus and truck have no such comparable expense.

Railroads are strictly regulated in almost all their activities. They cannot choose whom they will serve, nor the classes of freight they will handle; they are held to rigid requirements in the observance of uniform and non-discriminatory rates, details of service, safety appliances, working conditions of employes, and other matters considered to be in the public interest. No comparable requirements are enforced on most other public carriers of freight.

Nothing herein is directed at privately-owned motor cars or trucks used in business or personal service. In the four States in which this railway runs there are 1,745 passenger busses and a large number of trucks operated for hire. Aside from their direct competition with the railroads, these commercial vehicles add greatly to the burdens of the highway and cause great inconvenience to the motoring public.

The rates paid by those who patronize these trucks and busses do not reflect the full cost of the service. The actual cost is the rate PLUS a proper share of the taxes and charges the public pay to provide and maintain highways which these commercial busses and trucks use to make money for themselves.

The railroads contribute tremendously to the commercial welfare of the country, through their purchasing power, their payrolls, the taxes they pay in every community they reach, and above all, through their indispensable service to all business.

This Railway asks no favors. It does seek to be placed on a fair basis with its competitors. It makes no war on other agencies of transport. It believes in the survival of the fittest when the test is on equal terms, with equal opportunity.

If the integrity of railroad service is to be maintained, the public, through its constituted authorities, will need to correct some of the inequities which now exist.

Respectfully submitted,

J. B. HILL, President.

The chamber of commerce committee had asserted in its petition that Little Rock might lose the club to Mobile or some other city unless a park could be obtained. The committee said it was too late to erect a grandstand and provide a new field and urged use of Kavanaugh field by the Travelers next year on condition that Mr. Allen sell his club to local interests for a sum not to exceed $85,000. Mr. Allen agreed to the conditions, the committee members said.

Whether State Fair park or Booster park in north Little Rock can be obtained was uncertain tonight.

Strange are the ways of figuring ratings in the boxing world. The great minds of the ring racket are more devious in their prognostications than the boys who use comparative scores to determine football superiority.

For instance: One read with some amazement that Young Stribling had suffered irreparable loss of prestige when he defeated Arthur DeKuh in Atlanta in 10 rounds. It seems that because Stribling did not put DeKuh away for the count he had fallen completely out of the class of a heavyweight contender.

The fact that DeKuh HAS BEEN KNOCKED OUT BUT TWICE IN HIS ENTIRE RING CAREER and the added consideration that he went into the Stribling battle to put up solely a defensive fight did not mean a thing to the master minds of fistiana. Because Stribling did not knock DeKuh out, Stribling was deemed to have collapsed.

Likewise Primo Carnera won a decision over Paulino Uzcudun the other day in Spain and the deep thinkers of the ring declared at once that Carnera was no earthly good any more. They pointed out that Carnera would be a flop as a drawing card against Stribling in Florida this winter.

It seems to be kayo or nothing for the ringwise these days. DeKuh demonstrated his real ability a few days ago by knocking out Big Boy Peterson in New Orleans in the seventh Perhaps Stribling did very well to win a clear-cut decision over the Italian. Likewise Carnera would be favored to lick any of the average heavyweights if he were matched in America.

The strange mental processes of the fistic folks always will unintelligible to the casual observer.

BEATS BARTUSH

Heavyweight Mat Champion Wins in Straight

By Walter Wilkes.

By Walter Wilkes.

The heavyweight wrestling championship of the world finished Wednesday evening exactly where it had begun, tightly clutched in the Hellenic grasp of Jumping Jimmy Londos, despite the earnest efforts of Bill Bartush, with moral and vocal support from 3,500 fans, to dislodge it.

Overeagerness proved the ruin of Bartush, as it has that of many another good youngster when pitted against the willy and resourceful Man of Argos in the past few years.

It was a splendid match, and the Chicage wrestler—who has deservedly become quite a favorite with local fans—actually seemed to have the better of the going most of the way. That is, until he began a series of butts which

These worked well enough for a time, but Londos was too agile to take one squarely in the bread-basket. Finally he side-stepped a Bartush rush completely, the Chicagoan falling to the mat and leaving himself, exposed long enough for the champion to clamp on his dreaded Japanese toe-hold and bear down.

COMPELLED TO SURBENDER.
Bartush struggled for the ropes, but the pain was so terrific he was compelled to surrender the fall, the end coming in 46 minutes, 18 seconds.

Few thought the challenger, limping badly as he left the ring and having to be assisted up the steps to his dressing room, would be able to return for another fall, but he did. Not only that, the leg seemed to improve so rapidly that he reached the butting stage again in some ten minutes fast work.

Six teams are represented on the fifth annual All-Southern conference honorary football eleven as selected for the Associated Press today by Dixie coaches and sport writers.

again in some ten minutes fast work.

Londos dodged again, inaugurated a series of side headlocks and finished off his opponent with a neat airplane whirl and body block in exactly ten minutes and 42 seconds.

BARTUSH WORKS.

From the first of the match it was apparent that Bartush was working hard, while the champion followed his custom of conserving his resources, relying upon his superb endurance to extricate himself from holds, and allowing his opponent to gradually tire himself out.

The first hold of the bout was a headlock applied by Bartush in about six minutes and held onto tenaciously. Londos finally kicked out and danced about the ring with the Chicagoan in frantic pursuit and jeers ringing from the gallery.

For some two hours the Bulldog squad transpled up and down Sanford field as they scrimmaged offensively and defensively a Red Devil team that refused to give an inch until the varsity overwhelmed them and started a riot up and down the field. got their first heavy scrimmage of the week.

The "Tech" got the first chance at the ball, and they refused to turn loose the ball until they had shown the varsity what to expect Saturday. An hour of the practice was taken up by that "Tech" team as it ran its plays over and around the varsity for a while and then settled back content when the big guns of the Bulldog squad began throwing them for losses.

Only once did a Red break loose for a touchdown and that came when Jodie Whire, hard driving Red Devil fullback, went through a hole in the line and eluded the secondary for a long scoring run. Outside of Whire's run the Red Devils and their Tech plays could go nowhere against the alert first stringers.

And on offense the Bulldogs played like nobody's business. They went through, around and over the freshmen for four touchdowns and in doing it they looked pretty good. The varsity backfield was intact today and "The Ripper" Roberts, Marion Dickens, Spurgeon Chandler and Austin Downes performed well most of the afternoon.

Downes performed well most of thaternoon.

The climax of the Georgia squad's preparation for its final game was reached today. From now on they will coast down hill in their training. Another scrimmage faces them tomorrow, but it will not be as long or as hard as the ones given them today and Tuesday. They will end it all Friday afternoon with a brief workout on their home lot.

Red Leathers, half of the "millio dollar guard combine," scrimmaged thay for the first time in more that to weeks. Leathers suffered a baknee injury in the last scrimmage is

A. A. C. Members Meet Tonight

A revision of the constitution and other important matters will feature a meeting of the membership of the Atlanta Ath-letic Club at 7:30 o'clock to-night at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

It will be one of the most im-portant meetings that has been held in several months and every member of the club is urged to be present.

The good year 1893 was a memorable one in the annals of football—as well as marking the date of the first Tech-Georgia game. It was the year of the first recorded hurling of ineligibility charges. And it was the same Tech-Georgia game which started all the fuss. The lads from over in Athens were firm in their conviction that the city boys from Atlanta had oozed a fast back. After that resumption games were played until 1916, with the exceptions of 1901 and 1908. A break in relations occured in 1916 which was not patched up until 1925, when went on as scheduled.

That game was what we used to call a "lulu." The Techs made use of a heavy weight advantage to pound out a 28-6 decision. After their return to Atlanta, the Jackets—which they were not then—charged that their paths had been made hard by a rock barrage from the sidelines, but that they were satisfied. This may or may not indicate that accounts were squared.

Following that magnificent entrance.

Following that magnificent entrance into the field of football the Techmen hit the toboggan. They were slapped unmercifully by any and all comers. Georgia, fortunately for the records, was not one of the comers. Just why the break occurred, or whether it was a break, the press of the time does not report. Quite possibly it was a case of sticking to one's class.

Vengeance.

The account of the game records one of the queerest plays on the books. Sullivan, of Georgia, was forced behind his own goal line to punt. His effort hit the cross bar and bounced out of the playing field and over a fence. The scene of action was shifted for five minutes, the reporter says, while players poured over the fence and fought for the ball. Red Wilson. Tech, finally came up with it and scored a touchdown.

Tech hit the peak in the follow-They did get together in 1897, however, and then Georgia started after a belated vengeance. A pass combination, "Lobster" Brown to "Chip" Robert, placed the ball in scoring range for the first two touchdowns, and McCarty bucked both over. Sweet, powerful fullback, hammered the last score out. This one was at 33-0. Georgia took the two-up lead in the series by throwing a fine backfield, headed by Hamilton and McIntosh, at the Jackets and marching to score after score. Tech was outplayed, man for man, say the reports, although Laddox is given credit for playing a great game at fullback. In that year the Bulldogs took the Tech won the 1907 game to tie the score, won it in a storm of charges of professionalism laid to both teams and amid heavy gambling. The first score came after a short Georgia punt and a fair catch signal which was ignored by Georgia tacklers. Buchanan was crashed to earth, but continued play and neatly place-kicked the free kick which the kicked the free kick which the referee decided was proper. Tech padded the lead in the second half, a pass to Buchanan netting 45 yards and "Twenty Per Cent" Davis crashing 10 yards to the goal line. Georgia scored almost immediately afterward, blocking a punt and sending McDuffie over in a few plays. The game ended with Tech a 10-6 winner.

Each Tie in Handsome Gift Box

Another Lapse. Another lapse in the series is noted in 1908, and in 1909 the two teams played as though they had been resting through the interim.

The Jackets scored two touchdowns which were not worthy of points, one on a trick and the other on a fumble.

other on a fumble.

The first ame when the Jackets sent "Doc" Wilson around end and Coleman through the line. Coleman had the ball, Wilson a helmet. The Bulldogs tackled Wilson. But the officials, while agreeing that it was a good idea, called it back. It might have been that their dignity had been offended.

Patterson Scores.

Later Patterson Scores.

Later Patterson crashed through for a touchdown, but fumbled over the line. He got his score just before the half ended, however, on a long march. Georgia tied the score when an air attack clicked, a Northcutt-to-Hatcher combination being the big gainer, and Maddox smashed out the last four yards. Tech counted the winning points in that 12-6 victory on another long march, Wilson scoring as the climax.

Georgia got even for one of those defeats in 1910, squared the series again, made what was called one of the greatest comebacks in history to take an 11-6 decision. Tech, an odds-on favorite, sent Patterson across with an early touchdown and seemed in a fail way to justify all predictions. Georgia fought back—"every man a tiger"—however, and held an edge from then on. The Bulldogs dio not score until the second half was well under way, but then, led by the great Bob McWhorfer, counted twice to win.

With a strong team back in 1911 the Bulldogs were favored heavily.

Line Softens Foe.

Georgia's line power softened the Tech battlers. Al Loeb, the little cen-ter, was literally beaten to pieces and carried from the field. Ben Sinclair, the Sandow of the line, was the only the Sandow of the line, was the only man who was steady in that wall, and when McWhorter gathered his energies for one lone spurt to the only touchdown of the day, even Sinclair uld not halt him. It is recorded that Kid Woodruff led a devastating interference for McWhorter on his dash. The game ended in a 5-0 victory for the Bulldogs.

Again in 1912 the Bulldogs, McWhorter-led, came through with a victory. This time the score was 20 to 0 in favor of the Athenians, and the formidable Bob paved the way to that victory.

In 1913 the Bulldogs made the lead three, rather, McWhorter regain-ed it for them. Both of the touchdowns scored in the 14-0 victory were scored by "Royal Bob" and, if Tech never once threatened during the course of the game, it was largely because of his great defensive play. He was everywhere on the field that day, directing the Georgia attack and halting Tech threats. He had two good lieutenants on the offense in Paddock and Crump. game as a practice affair, playing the Techs on October 13. Georgia won easily enough, 12-0, marching to a score on the opening kickoff and later shaking McCutcheon, veteran backfield ace, loose on a 40-yard jaunt to another. It was in this game that Georgia's 110-pound quarterback, Dorsey, made his debut.

Scoreless Tie.

There was another layoff in 1901, but in 1902 the Jackets came part-way back up the hill. They spon-sored the major surprise of the sea-son by holding a rampaging Geor-gia team to a 0-0 tie.

An that game cost the gambo-leers plenty, Georgia being quoted at 6-1 on the curbs. Frank Rid-ley, of the Bulldogs, was inter-viewed after the game and stated that it was the worst game his club had ever played.

Uninteresting.

That year ended Georgia's su-premacy. The next, 1904, ushered in a four-year Tech regime. The Jackets flashed a powerful o

The Jackets flashed a powerful of-fensive to win that 1904 clash. They took the ball on a 25-yard march to an early score; watched Georgia tie as Virlyn Moore scooped up a fumble to make the break; and came back with three more touchdowns, taking a 23-6 decision.

and Crump.

The Jackets came back again in 1914, mustering a better offense to win a 7-0 victory. Jene Patten and Captain Fielder led the Jacket attack, a long run by Patten paying the way to the lone score and others saving embarrassment on several occasions. The Bulldogs launched a late drive which marched to the shadow of the Tech goal, where a determined stand by the Jackets called a halt.

The 1915 clash was one of the most

Strupper and Fielder, spear-points of the Tech attack, were helpless. The Georgia line out-charged Tech's; the Georgia backs gained in midfield. Yet when scores neared Neville could not hammer a path over Alexander, and Alexander was everywhere. The Jackets won, 21-0, in 1916 and had nulled Georgia to one up in the series. eorgia held that edge over the long sport.

The game was most uninteresting from a Tech standpoint, although Georgia supporters had plenty of opportunity to cheer. The work of Virlyn Moore—Judge Moore, now—and Harry Woodruff—"Bid" the First—was outstanding. "Bid" stepped himself off 75 yards in a goal line dash in the highlight of the game. The reporter of the day states that Georgia held a whispered conference before each play. Lo! The huddle was born!

That year ended Georgia's sureak in relations. Coach Heisman devised a reverse shift, with the play heading against the line shift, and the bewildered crew from Athens was helpless before a Backs Ran Wild.

Tommy Spence, Froggy Morrison and Everett Strupper ran wild—or as wild as they pleased—and rang up three touchdowns. Georgia had but one chance, and Cantey Alexander, rushed into the breach, halted that.

Athletic relations between the two schools were broken after the 1916-1917 scholastic year. Not until 1925 were the difficulties patched up. Then a glorious battle, won by Tech, 3-0, hetalded the return to the slate of the Tech-Georgia classic.

Victory winged from the cleated toe swung by Ike Williams, who kicked a 35-yard field goal for the deciding points in a titanic struggle. The margin truly represented the difference in strength.

or Teen, finally came up with it an scored a touchdown.

Tech hit the peak in the following year, rolling up a 46-to-0 score, which still stands as the most severe beating ever meted out during the course of the series. The Techs won easily, but piled their score up by two remarkable runs. Butler caught a drop-kick aimed at the Jacket goal and raced 95 yards to one of the touchdowns; Red Wilson lugged a kick-off back the length of the field for another.

The Jackets earned a 17-0 victory in 1906. They forced a break early by hard tackling and went over; later drove 85 yards to score, and counted finally on a "straight football—no yardage" basis.

Jackets Score. Captain Doug Wykoff and Owen Poole shared with Williams the Tech tonors; Captain "Smack" Thompson,
'Big Six" Luckie and Willie Sherock were the gunners for Georgia.
Even as they entered the 1926 game the Jackets figured to go ahead. Season records were almost even, although Tech had a bit the edge, and was given that edge in the betting.

The Atlantans proceeded to justify those odds in the first half, leaving the field with a 13-0 lead. Yet all the paper edge went for Yet all the paper edge went for aught in the second half as the Bulldogs came back to score twice, add two extra points and take a 14-13 decision, the while outfighting the decision, Jackets.

Deciding Point.

Chick Shiver sailed through to block Sam Murray's kick after the second Tech touchdown had been haumered over, and that lost point eventually decided the struggle. George Morton headed a rejuvenated Georgia attack in the second half, and Johnson place-kicked the winning point. The 1927 season found Georgia undefeated and untied; found Tech a poor second choice in the betting; found the game regarded Confident.

Georgia held to her confidence, but suffered the final shaking late in the third period when Stumpy Thomason intercepted a long pass and ran it back 58 yards to Georgia's 23-yard line. Three plays later he skirted end for the touchdown.

Herdis McCrary, powerhouse of the Bulldog attack, was held in check all day by the Tech forwards, although he, Nash, Shiver and Dudley all won honors for their play. Mizell, Durant, Thomason, Waddey, Drennon and Crowley starred for Tech in the 12-0 victory.

The series was even again. Each had won 10 games; two had been ties. And in 1923 Tech, unbeaten and untied, powerful, speedy, versatile, beautiful the prepare to the speedy.

Favorites.

The team which was to win the national championship entered the game favored. Georgia's fighting Bull-des surprised by scoring first, but Tech came back to tie and later to vin, 20 to 6.

Palmer recovered a Tech fumble; a pass, Hooks to Maffett, went over early—and Tech was trailing, 6-0. Then Watkins recovered a Georgia fumble and Thomason, Mizell and finally Lumpkin battered out the 18 yards to the double stripe. The second Tech touchdown climaxed a 58-yard march, 41 of which were covered in a single dash by "Stumpy." Lumpkin again carried the ball the last few feet. The triumvirate crashed out 62 yards between them on the road to the last score, with Thomason going over. A great Georgia team had made a great fight against a magnificant Tech team.

Then came 1920, and with it a good Georgia squad to knot the count again to ease some of the sting. It was no amooth road the Bulldogs traveled to their 12-6 victory, however. It wes Tech's turn to fight against a superior force, and Tech did as well as Georgia had the year before; as well as tradition demanded.

However, such men as Schwartz, Metzger, Hanley, Kurth, Yarr, Connelly, Culver, Host and Kosky will remain. That is plenty for a nucleus. And perhaps out of the 50 or more others on the varsity squad there are a few pretty fair players.

A long offensive and defensive scrimmage Wednesday afternoon at Piedmont park featured Tech High's preparation for a pre-playoff game at 2:30 o'clock (eastern time) Friday afternoon in Gainesville Ga., with Riverside Militarry Academy. Coach Tolbert and his Smithies will conclude their work with a long signal drill and blackboard lecture this afternoon.

In the practice Wednesday afternoon Coaches Tolbert, Alexander and Curran pointed out several faults face its heaviest and strongest forward wall.

It was announced Wednesday morning that G. M. "Pup" Phillips, former Tech center; Bill White, Georgia baseball coach; George Gardner, former Tech lineman, and Johnny Broadnax, Georgia freshman coach, have been selected as officials. They are capable and experienced officials who have given perfect satisfaction all the fall.

Riverside is leaving no stone unturned in preparation for Gainesville's best football game of the season. The game is being boosted by the Gainesville Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs. Riverside has postponed its afternoon drill and the public schools of the city will have only a morning session in order that the students may attend the game.

Captain G. M. Shearouse, Jr., director of the Riverside band, which numbers more than 50 pieces, is preparing a special program for the game, particularly during the intermission.

SMITHIES PLAY.

To match such an array of musicians Tech Hill will send its band in special busses.

Riverside and Tech High have two of the best preparatory and high school bands in the southern states.

Riverside and Tech High have two of the best preparatory and high school bands in the southern states, and it will be the first time that two such organizations have been on the sidelines during a football game.

Both teams are among the best coached elevens in the state. C. T. Tolbert is head coach of Tech High, with Tom Alexander and Jack Curran as assistants. It is Tolbert's 10th year as head of the Smithles.

As Max cupped his hands around the match at the tip of his cigar, Peter noted that, though large, with square blunt nails, they were clean and, in their way, well shaped—big. steady, competent hands. Were they the hands that had held the pistol which had taken Mortison's life?

That was one of Peter's hunches, and he had come to the jail for the purpose of following it. Either Mrs. Everett's story was true—in which case the missing Marjorie might have more to do with Mortison's death than she had revaled—or the gossip of Hangtown was true, and she might be protecting her husband, counting on her story and her womanhood to set story and her womanhood to set her free.

"And Aline, too?" The blue eyes blazed into Peter's with anguished questioning.

"I'm afraid not. Unless something wholly unexpected turns up, she'll have to stand trial."

"Then thank God I'll be out, so I can help her!" Max did not raise his voice, but the words vibrated with utter sincerity. "I ought never to have sheed it."

One of Peter's hunches fell tumbling to earth. Of one thing he was instantly and completely certain: this man would never for one hour, for one moment, have allowed his wife to take upon herself the burden of his own action.

"He's at least 10 years older than she is," he found himself thinking irrelevant?

"Unlike the sheriff," he said aloud, "you don't seem curious as to why I'm mixing in on your business."

"Suppose," he said slowly, "that the prosecution should bring evidence to show that your wife and Mortison I'm and the colon of the take with uttory of the couldn't do that," he said with calm finality. "It wouldn't be true."

Peter remembered the sheriffs words—"then he's in for a grand awakenin." But he had to go on with it. There was no other way—and better now than later.

"They say a drowning man clutches at a straw." Grim humor flickered across Everett's lips for a moment, leaving them more drawn than before. "Maybe you're the straw. You say you're from a city paper. For some reason, henven knows why, you seem friendly. I've spent all night trying to think what I could do. God knows, I thought I could always protect Aline. And now, when she needs my protection most, I'm helpless."

Again Peter noted the absence of curiosity in his words. He had spent the night, not in trying to understand why his wife had committed murder, but only in seeking the way to help her.

Max dropped his clentched hands to the cot beside him. The ash from his cigar fell unheeded, scattering in feathly answering grin. "Do you think I could see Mr. Everett?"

"Well, the sheriff left word if you called you was to have whatever you asked for, so long as it wasn't again the law," the jailor said. "Come right this way."

In a cell the replica of the one in which Peter had spent the night, Max Everett was sitting on his bunk, his hands clasped between his knees. As soon as the door had changed behind the retreating jailor, Peter pulled out his pipe and tobacco, and tossed a couple of cigars and a package of cigarets on the bunk beside Everett.

"I don't know what you smoke," he remarked, "but I thought you might not be sorry for a bit of tobacco in one form or another."

"Thanks," Everett said laconically. With scarcely a glance, he reached out mechanically and took the cigar nearest him. Peter noticed that he asked no questions regarding this unannounced visit from a stranger. His attitude was one of dazed acceptance, in a world that had crashed so irretrievably that minor enquiries had lost their sginificance.

Under cover of lighting his pipe, Peter studied the face of the man before him. It was a square face; broad of brow, the naturally fair skin weatherworn to a permanent tan. The sandy, sun bleached hair had begun to retreat in two points above the forehead.

Although the blue eyes were bloodshot from loss of sleep, and two dark smudges marked, the hollows beneath them, it was a face from which health shone as something more than a physical condition. It was somehow a nositive attribute of character.

Then I'll put you in touch with a good lawyer. And if necessary, I'll get Emil Kurtner on the job. I warn you, if you ever call Kurtner a de-tective, he'll quit you cold. "He's a consultant in criminology.

His price is a hundred dollars a day, but if I can get him interested, and we find we need him, I can probably get him to come for less. He's had a sneaking fondness for me, ever since I played a hunch against his science —and won."

—and won."

"Money doesn't matter," Max said, not boastfully but with a trace of impatience, as if it were stupid to suppose that money could possibly matter where Aline's need was concerned. "There's another thing. Mrs. Everett is going to be tried in a community already hostile," Peter felt his way carefully. He wondered that Max had not once, even by implication, referred to the sheriff's version of the crime the night before. He had shown no animosity toward the dead shown no animosity toward the dead man, nor even an interest in him. It

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—Lacking leadership on either side, the stock market stumbled through an irregular ession, ending in a mild slump today. NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Cotton was easier Wednesday, largely on account of selling by Liverpool interests which are apprehensive over a threatened lackout in the textile trade. At one time values sold at little over a dollar a bale lower and closed near the bottom.

Disappointing cables and selling from Disappointing cables and selling from abroad gave the market an easy opening, some buying, however, was prompted by a bullish crop and ginning forecast and the market held steady for quite a while. Later, in the day the selling increased in volume with most of it attributed to Liverpool interests who are apprehensive over a threatened lockout of 200,000 weavers.

LIVINGSTON & CO. NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Sentiment Wednesday was unsettied by weakness in Liverpool which reflected the incertain labor conditions and the decline if Egyptians. As a result cotton in the local market declined about 29 points under pressure of Liverpool, southern and local selling as well as scattering liquidation. The market lacks austained buying support at the moment and may drift lower but prices are axceptionally low and a broadening demand should be encountered on further decline.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Cotton opened quiet about 10 down, reflecting the easier Liverpool cables. Prices at the finish were about 20 points down.

The advance Tuesday seemed only a technical readjustment and market will probably remain, for some time longer, in a narrow range around present levels.

Liverpool futures are due: January 5.49; March 5.60.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Wednesday's market reflected disappointment over the unimpressive volume which has attended recent sessions in which prices worked higher. This was interpreted as an indication that no general following could be expected to be attracted while unfavorable proports continue to depress and the series of the month, we believe sound policy would dictate purchase of standard investment issues on all recessions in anticipation of a 1831 recovery in business and in stock prices.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Announcement of steel price advances by Carnegie Steel Bethlehem and others were apparently taken into account Tuesday and failed to counteract the slow downward drift of price which occurred in Wednesday's session. An offsetting influences to this and other indications of commodity price betterment which include also the higher level for copper, there was a very poor car loading state ment—and—a further decline in the weekly ratio of steel production to plant capacity. The Iron Age index now stands at 30 per cent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The market continued dult and almost featureless agatuwednesday. There was a sharp run up in Auburn on the announcement of the regular cash dividend and a 2 per cent extra in stock, but generally speaking stocks opened below last night's close and worked gradually lower during the day.

Mr. Arnett said the other companies "under the control and management" of the Keystone Holding Company are the Security Life Insurance Company of America, Chicago; which, he said this year absorbed the Reinsurance Life Company of Chicago, and the Northern States Life Insurance Company of Hammond, Ind.

The contract provided for the purchase of a maximum of 2,000,000 shares at $1.50 each and required the deposit of not less than 1,200,000 shares. The receivers said approximately 1,983,000 shares already are on deposit with the American National bank of Nashville, as escrow agent.

Attorneys said the six life insurance companies brought under the working control of the Keystone Holding Company have admitted assets of $215.000,000; cash income of $62,000,000 per annum; $1,860,000,000 insurance in force and write new insurance each year of more than $500,000,000.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(P)—Sliding down nearly 2c a bushel, corn today suddenly reversed its higher trend, and pulled other grain values lower. Heavy profit-taking in corn found demand inadequate and pit observers said the market had been overbought. There were also reports of enjarged.

There were also reports of enlarged rural offerings of corn here. Closing quotations on corn were hervous 3-4@1 3-4c lower than yesternervous 3-4@13-4e lower than yester-day's finish. Wheat closed unchanged to 1-2e off; oats 3-8@7-8e down, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c. Corn trade started with a rush of buying, but fresh price bulges met with realizing sales. Speculative selling was in evidence on the ground that upturns in corn values would lead to increased feeding of wheat to live stock, and tend to restrict farm al bank of Nashville, as escrow agent.

Mr. Arnett said the total number of Inter-Southern shares now outstanding is 3,093,666.67, "and it is expected that the new owner will acquire about 85 per cent of the total issue." He added:

"Associated with the Keystone Holding Company in this purchase are prominent banking interests in the east and middle west.

"The purchase includes all former insurance holdings of Caldwell & Co., of Nashville, and associated interests."

Attorneys said the six life insurance companies brought under the working control of the Keystone Holding Company have admitted assets of $215.000,000 ; cash income of $62,000,000 per annum; $1,560,000,000 insurance in force and write new insurance each year of more than $500,000,000.

Provisions were higher, responsive o upturns in hog values.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—No sales were confirmed in raw sugar today, but the undertone was easy and sugars were offered at concessions of 1-32 of a cent or on the basis of 3.38 for spots duty paid.

Conflicting reports from abcoad regarding progress of the stabilization conferences was gespousible for the unsettled tone in raw futures and prices were easier, closing at the lowest and from 2 to 4 points below the previous day. The selling appeared to be mostly for Cuban and European account, while aside from covering there was little demand of importance. One report stated that Java has proposed to withdraw 700,000 tons and segregates its along the lines of the Cuban plan, while another report stated that seven members had withdrawn from the Java trust. With this uncertainty in view, operators as a rule were inclined to be cautious and trading was only of moderate proportions, with sales aggregating about 26,850 tons. Closing prices: December 1.29; January 1.30; March 1.35; May 1.45; July 1.52; September 1.50 and next December 1.63. No. 2 contracts were neglected.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—High-rrade domestic bonds held steady as second grade issues moved a shade ower in a very quiet session today. A few wide movements stood out an sharp contrast with the narrow roove followed by the domestic list is a whole, notably Pathe Exchange which staged a spectacular advance groove followed by the domestic list as a whole, notably Pathe Exchange 7s which staged a spectacular advance of 15 3-4 points, possibly reflecting rumors that the company was to be acquired by Radio-Keith-Orpheum.

While the report lacked confirmation, the bonds with warrants attached opened nearly 2 points higher at 52 and closed at 65 7-8, compared with a year's high of 80 and a minimum of 36. Other amusement bonds joined the advance.

Activity in United States governments was at low ebb. Trading was confined to Liberty bonds and the few sales were at prices a small fraction under the previous final quotation. A note of caution has been introduced into the bidding in view of the remote possibility that the government may find it necessary to issue more bonds which would have an adverse affect on the price of outstanding issues. Dealers in governments generally see little likelihood of such a contingency. December 15 maturities which may amount to about $500,000,000, are expected to be refunded through one issue of one year treasury certificates.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

It was that moment of utter silence and inaction that saved Esteban. For, as he stood thus before them, the Waziri saw in the silent, majestic figure their beloved lord in a characteristic pose. "O Bwana, Bwana," cried one of the warriors, rushing forward, "it is you, Tarsan of the Apes, Lord of the Jungle, whom we had given up for lost. We, your faithful Waziri, have been searching for you. Even now we were about to dare the dangers of Opar, fearing you had been captured."

chosen to speak, was indeed fortunate for Esteban. For this black who had once gone to London with Tarzan, spoke broken English, was very proud of the accomplishment and never lost a chance to air his talent before his comrades. Flora Hawkes had schooled Esteban carefully and well in the lore of Tarzan, so that he realized now he was in the pres-ence of a band of the ape-man's faithful Waziri. Never had he seen such men! Clean-cut, powerful blacks with strong features and intelligent faces.

Esteban, actor that he was, grasped his opportunity. Gathering his wits, he spoke, realizing that his life depended upon his plausibility. Fast he thought, and a cunning idea broke upon the shrewd brain of the unscrupulous Spaniard. "Since last I saw you," he said, "I discovered that a party of white men had entered the country for the purpose of plundering. I followed them to their camp. Then I came in search of you. Already they have been to Opar and have taken many golden ingots. Come!" and Esteban turned back to the camp he had just quitted. had just quitted.

As they made their way along, Usula, the Waziri who had spoken English, walked at the false Tarzan's side. Behind, the Spaniard could hear the others speaking in their native tongue, no word of which he understood. It occurred to him it would be most embarassing should he be addressed in the Waziri language, which of course the real Tarzan would understand perfectly. An inspiration came to him, suggested by the accident that had befallen Tarzan and which Flora had told Esteban about; the injury Tarzan had sustained in Opar which had the injury Tarzan had sustained in Opar which had robbed the ape-man, for months, of his memory.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES A DAY OF MISERY.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The night had passed, a night of pain and terror, and jolly, bright, round Mr. Sun was climbing up in the blue, blue sky. The young Muskrat held fast in a cruel steel trap on the edge of the Laughing Brook wondered how the latter could still laugh and sing, and how jolly, bright, round Mr. Sun could continue to smile down on the Green Forest and the Green Meadows when such dreadful things as had happened to him were to be seen. Jerry Muskrat had reto a choice between losing one of these or my life it wouldn't take me long to make up my mind what to do. No. sir, it wouldn't well, I must be on my way for I am hungry.

"So," said Blacky, "yon were not so smart as you thought you were. This is what comes of being headstrong and heedless. Too bad. When that boy who set the trap comes he will knock you on the head with a stick and then carry you off and take your fur coat. I've seen it happen before. Too bad. Why don't you use those big sharp teeth of yours?"

"Use them for what?" asked the young Muskrat.

Too bad. Too bad."

Blacky flew away and the young Muskrat crouched in misery trying to make up his mind to do the dreadful thing that both his father and Blacky the Crow had advised him to do. He did his best to muster sufficient courage to try his sharp teeth on that aching leg, but it was of no use. He tried to pull, but that hurt too much. His brothers and sister and his mother, Mrs. Jerry, came to see him. They didn't help him any. He didn't feel any better for their coming. Mrs. Jerry urged him to do just what Jerry had advised him to do. She remained near after the others had gone back to the Smiling Pool, but there was nothing she could do to help excepting to keep watch.

He had advised the young Muskrat to either gnaw that imprisoned leg off or try to twist it off and thus free himself, but the young Muskrat day the young Muskrat ever had known. It was a day of misery, a day of suffering and terror and hopeless fright. It was getting almost time for the Black Shadows to come creeping Jerry had gone back to the Smiling Pool, but there was suffering to keep watch.

So the long day passed, the longest day the young Muskrat ever had known. It was a day of misery, a day of suffering and terror and hopeless fright. It was getting almost time for the Black Shadows to come creeping out from the Purple Hills. That boy who had set the dreadful trap had not come to see if any one had been more frightened than ever. Actually he suffered as much from dread and fright as he did from the pain in his leg. The latter was swellen and hurt dreadfully if he moved the least bit. Blacky the Crow, flying high over head on his way to the bank of the Big River, discovered him on that log and saw at once that something was wrong. He turned and circled overhead. His sharp eyes saw the trap. He flew down to a tree close by.

Fine as was the main bout, it had to yield the palm of the evening insofar as concentrated, dynamic action was concerned to the semi-windup in which Atlanta's two favorite Pauls—Harper and Jones—wrestled to a furious one-hour draw which had the crowd in an uproar from start to finish.
